Students protest on Hill

5,000 march

By Mark Bayles

Last Monday five thousand college students, from across the nation gathered in Washington D.C. to attend National Student Lobby Day. The demonstration, organized by The United States Student Association (USSA), was held to lobby against Reagan's budget cuts in student financial aid. The MSC Student Government Association bussed 40 from MSC to join 500 students from New Jersey.

During the day, students met with their congressmen to gain support for keeping the financial aid programs in tact. If the budget passes, it will reduce the Pell grant by 40 percent, and will force an estimated 1 million students to drop out of college.

If a congressman wasn't there in person, his aide spoke to the students. Students from New Jersey met with Senator Bill Bradley and Congressman Joseph Minish's aide.

In a discussion with New Jersey students, Bradley called Reagan's budget "incredibly short-sighted."

Bradley said, "We are shackling our economic growth for the 80's and 90's."

Later in the day, students rallied on the west side of the Capitol chanting such thing as "Buy book, not bombs" and "Reagan says cut-back, we say fight-back." Several members of Congress, including Tip O'Neill, speaker of the house said that they would not support the President's budget cuts. O'Neill stated "Education is the greatest asset this nation has."

Sonjui Lal, MSC SGA president, said "We had organization and a unified effort. I think that most of the credit belongs to the USSA and the state student associations. New Jersey showed an outstanding effort. We sent 500 students here today. It was a good beginning."

Bill Solomon, vicechairman of the New Jersey Students Association (NJSA), was very impressed with the day. "The students displayed a great attitude toward what we must accomplish. It was a great start."

The bottom line is that we must register to vote and vote out the representatives who are against the growth of students and inevitably the growth of the nation," he said.

Janice Fine, Chairperson of the USSA, told the crowds "We are going to win this fight because we are right, it's just that simple."

Congressmen commended the student lobbyists for the determination and the organization of the lobby. The students were encouraged not to stop the lobby at Washington, but to take the fight back to their schools. Students were reminded that their vote is their best weapon, and that they should use it to their advantage.

Survey results:

Residents want out

By Stephen McLean

In light of the proposed room fee increase, it is projected that half of the students presently living in on-campus dormitories do not plan to return next semester, according to a Montclarion survey.

Out of 100 current residents surveyed, 51 stated that next semester they would be unable or did not wish to pay $2,368 for housing. In addition, six days past the application deadline, the Clove Road apartments still have 12 empty spaces.

Students have protested the fee hike and the proposed tripling of dormitory students through a petition circulated in the dorms.

Dr. Jean Armstrong, dean of student affairs, explained that the tripling proposal was made only in hopes of keeping down the housing rates. She said, "students must realize it's a two-way street; students must live on-campus so that the college hold down rates."

Dr. Elliot Mininberg, vice president for administration and finance, explained that the college's bond "requires we charge a rate that adds up to our total debt." The $2,368 fee was acquired by dividing the debt by 2,000, the number of on-campus housing openings.

Mininberg said the only way students will not have to pay the full full price in the long run is by tripling to fill more than 2,000 spaces, creating excess funds which will, in turn, be rebated to all students. On these grounds, he said, "to complain against tripling and putting 6 to an apartment in Clove Road is self-defeating."

"The bottom line," Armstrong said, "is only if the dorms are filled above capacity, can the fees be lowered. Dorm students will soon receive details on possible rebates."

Bookstore is correcting problems

By Linda Weichenrieder

Any future problems that the bookstore may encounter have been cleared up, according to Doug Miller, head of faculty student co-op. Paul McCormick, the manager of the bookstore, listed five major problems that caused the delay in book orders and delivery.

One problem was that certain personnel were permitted to take their vacations in December, which is the bookstore's busiest period. Under the new guidelines, which have been set up by both the administration and the faculty student co-op, employees must take their vacations so as not to interfere with the requisitions and processing of book orders.

Secondly, book orders were held up until the buy back of used books was completed. "Originally, we wanted to be able to offer students more used books since the price of new texts went up 14 percent," Miller said. In order to do this, McCormick had to wait until most of the used texts were brought back.

In the future, especially prior to the spring semester, the purchasing of used texts will be of secondary importance so we can get the orders in on time," Miller said, "but it will still be a major concern."

Miller also explained that adequate managerial supervision in the bookstore was lacking. "Orders should have been checked by Mr. McCormick to make sure they were being processed on a timely basis," Miller said. "If Mr. McCormick knew that people weren't doing their jobs, this wouldn't have happened," he said.

To check that situation, the bookstore manager must write

SPOTLIGHT

Weight program begins

During these past days of warmer weather, most of us have become increasingly aware that we can not shroud ourselves all summer long. The judgement day will come when we open our storage closets and try desperately to zip shorts and squeeze into bathing suits while trying to maintain some semblance of self-esteem. Never fear! The Weight Control Clinic is here!

Sparked by National Nutrition month, and a need for sound nutritional counseling on campus, a Weight Control Clinic is now being offered by Student Health Services in Blanton Hall. The clinic is headed by Dr. Lillian Rosenberg, M.D., Carol Sokolik, R.D., the faculty advisor, and is run by foods and nutrition majors.

The purpose of this program is to provide nutritional information to campus members. Sokolik said the goals of the clinic are to provide sound nutritional guidance and weight control regimens. The foods and nutrition students, she said, will help prepare specific diets, and suggest the proper food choices best suited to an individual's lifestyle.

Sokolik said there is a "tremendous need for nutrition counseling on campus, especially for weight control." She added, "students sometimes have misconstrued ideas of what nutrition is and revert to megadoses of vitamins and minerals." General nutrition information will also be available at the clinic.

Although only March is National Nutrition month, this program will run for the rest of the semester. If you would like further information, contact the Student Health Center at Blanton Hall or Carol Sokolik in the Foods and Nutrition Department, room 110, Finley Hall.

Ephron to speak at MSC

Nora Ephron, author of three books, will speak at MSC on March 10. Ephron, who has also written for The New York Post, The New York Times, and Cosmopolitan, will give a free seminar on magazine writing in Kops Lounge at 4 pm., as well as a public lecture at 7:30 pm. in Ballrooms A and B in the Student Center.

Ephron, 39, recently completed the screenplay for Susan Isaac's best seller Compromising Positions, and is now at work on a screen version of the Karen Silkwood case. She is presently a contributing editor for Esquire magazine.

Her afternoon seminar/discussion, "The Lead That Fits," focuses on journalism ethics and practices. She will be questioned by a panel featuring Dr. Rita Jacobs and Dr. Daniel Bronson, both of the English department. Naedine Hazell, former editor-in-chief on The Montclarion, and a reporter for The Record, Robert Thibault, editor-in-chief of The Montclarion, and Joe Kwiatkowski, vice-president of the Council on International and National Affairs (CINA).

Scribble, Scribble: Notes on the Media, Ephron's third, and most recent, book is the topic of her evening lecture. This book is a collection of essays concerning the wide range of journalism levels from the "frothiness of The New York Post, to the silliness of the Palm Beach Social Pictorial," according to the Boston Globe which has praised Ephron as a "writer's writer." Also included in the book are the monthly columns she wrote for Esquire which scrutinized such media figures as Theodore White, Clay Felker, Daniel Schorr, and Brendan Gill.

The program is sponsored by The Montclarion and CINA. Tickets to the lecture are $1 with ID, and $2 without. For further information and ticket reservation contact The Montclarion at (201) 893-5169.

MSC to celebrate 75th year

In ensuing months, our campus will be celebrating the 75th anniversary of MSC. During the period of Sept. 1983 to May 1984, commemorative events are being planned to honor the distinctive history MSC.

Although tentative plans are being formed, themes and ideas are being accepted from students, faculty and alumni. If you feel you can help, please send in your ideas to Box 1983, Montclair State College, Upper Montclair, NJ 07043.

Spotlight was compiled by Stephen McLean and Sharon Biegel. Organizations wishing to appear in Spotlight should send all pertinent information to Linda Weichenrieder, assignment editor.

Son praises father

By Janet Hirsch

On February 26, the Black Student Cooperative Union (BSCU) continued its celebration of Black History month by presenting a lecture by Paul Robeson Jr.

Robeson discussed the life of his father, Paul Robeson Sr., the famous concert singer. Robeson Sr. graduated class valedictorian from Rutgers University where he was also an all-American athlete. As a concert singer, Robeson Sr. toured the world and learned more than twenty languages at the same time.

Among his many accomplishments Robeson Sr. was the only black to be inducted into the National Theatre Hall of Fame. Robeson Sr. also starred on Broadway and in films. Othello, Emperor Jones and Showboat are some of the productions in which Robeson Sr. played major roles. In Showboat, he immortalized the classic lament, Old Man River.

Paul Robeson Sr. did more than just entertain the world, Robeson said, "he was the symbol of the Black-American against racism who insisted on the total freedom of the Black people." Robeson said he developed his own personal value system which he got from his father. He said he felt that he must strive for maximum fulfillment, help humanity as a whole, and be true to his principles. Robeson said he also believed that personal success was not that meaningful and that he must help those who are oppressed especially his own people.

Robeson said Robeson Sr. found that great cultures permeate each other and this prompted him to fight for the rights of all the people of the world. Robeson said his father helped in the struggle for colonial independence of the African state as well as trying to raise money for laborers like the British Workers Union and other labor groups all over the world. He added, "My father was one of the few popular concert artists who spent his time raising money for the labor movement."

Robeson Sr. sang during World War II to help people affected by it, Robeson said, particularly the Chinese people who struggled to survive during their conflict with Japan.

Robeson said Robeson Sr. "discovered that there was a link between blacks and all oppressed people of the world." This idea, he said, was the driving force behind Robeson's determination to assist those people of the world who were persecuted just as his own people were.

Robeson said his father wanted the world to learn to respect people of all backgrounds. He said he wanted the world to see other people and to appreciate their different ways through the medium of film.

what he believed in.

The lecture culminated with slides of Paul Robeson Sr., along with recordings of some of his singing, especially a few lines from his best known song, Old Man River.

campus police report

By Rick Zweibel

Two thefts, including the theft of another automobile, were reported in the last week and a half. On Monday, Feb. 22, a male reported that between Wednesday, Feb. 17 and Monday, Feb. 22 his 1981 Chevy Camaro, valued at about $10,500, was stolen from Lot 28.

On Thursday, Feb. 25, between 11 a.m. and noon, some tools and tool pouches, valued at about $500, were stolen from electricians in Chapin Hall when the tools were left unattended.

Three acts of criminal mischievous occurred in the last week and a half. On Wednesday, Feb. 24, at about 12:15 a.m., an intoxicated male pulled a phone out from a wall on the third floor of Blanton Hall and tossed it off the balcony.

On Saturday, Feb. 27, at about 1 a.m., the glass on a southeast door on the first floor of the Student Center was reported to have been broken.

On Sunday, Feb. 28, at about 12:15 a.m., an officer on patrol reported that a campus escort cart in Lot 8 had been tipped over.

Also on Thursday, Feb. 25, at about 3:15 p.m., three males near the Rathskellar were observed to have marijuana in their possession. One male was taken into custody and then referred to Dr. Jean Armstrong, Dean of Student Affairs. No charges were filed.

Finally, on Wednesday, Feb. 24, at about 2:30 a.m., an unknown person threw a lit cigarette off the third floor balcony of Blanton Hall, just missing a security officer.

New guidelines

a detailed status report containing book requisitions received and orders processed. A memo to all departments listing courses in which a requisition has not been received will be sent, and after every book rush another report showing requisition and order processing history by book title and professor will be prepared. It's important that "all bookstore personnel and faculty know exactly what's going on when ordering books," Miller said.

The termination of the bookstore's assistant manager and a broken telex also contributed to the delay, Miller said. He explained that after assistant manager John Calvin was hired at another company, there was a strain on the existing personnel and new workers had to be hired. "When there is a turnover of personnel, an adjustment period is needed," he said. In the beginning they don't always know how things operate.

Daily meetings are now required during the book rush periods in order to review employee performances and check that all work is completed on time. Eight new phone lines have also been installed. If any of these lines fail, co-op phones, coin phones, and Western Union will be used to place the book orders.

"Mr. McCormick has been placed on probation, said Miller, but "With these guidelines I don't think we'll have any problems next semester."

SGA news

By Judy Maviglia

The Student Government Association (SGA) meeting began last night with Sonjui Lal's president's report. Lal was pleased to inform the legislators that the lobbying in Washington D.C. Monday was "very successful."

Lal said that the Student Faculty Co-op questioned bookstore manager Paul McCormick about the delay with text books earlier this semester. McCormick said that the problem occurred because full-time employees who would have normally placed orders with the various publishers and taken them from the professors were on vacation. He also stated that the delays were a result of the failure of the new telex phone lines being installed. The Faculty Student Co-op has decided to put McCormick on probation until the next rush of book orders.

The Faculty Student Co-op has also donated $300,000 to Blanton Hall to help the college meet the first payment on the bond. However, they have also decided not to approve $50,000 which would have been used for railings in Blanton.

Lal stated that in June, between the 1st and the 4th, the SGA and the student organizations will be moving to the new annex.

The following organizations were granted Class I Charters for the academic year 1982-83: Human Relations Organizations (HRO), College Life Union Board, Players, Class I Concerts, Latin American Students Organization (LASO), and the Student Intermural and Leisure Council (SILC).

The Anthropology Club was granted a $580 appropriation for an anthropological weekend on March 19-21.

Alpha Kappa Psi was granted an MTA for a trip to Magic Fountain Ski area in Vermont on Sat. March 20.

Also an MTA was granted for a trip to the St. Patrick's Day Parade on March 17. A $1.00 fee will be charged.

career corner

By Elinor Peters

The sky is grey, cold winds are blowing, and the economic forecast is just as bleak. Thoughts of summertime and summer jobs may still be far off for you - but with more students looking for work and fewer opportunities - the only way to beat the competition if you hope to work this summer is to start now.

Since the pace will be "blistering" the sooner you talk to employers the more likely you will be one of the first they consider. Jobs with larger companies and government agencies take longer to find and to process the applications - so March could be the deadline for the job you want.

Begin your summer job hunt by knowing what you want to do and why. Are you working for income or experience? Have you thought about what you can offer an employer so you can present yourself effectively in an interview? Keep an employer's concerns in mind when you job search, and check out the organization's products or services before applying. If you can convince employers that your skills, experience, and interests match their needs you increase your chances of being hired.

Many organizations expect students to take the initiative. Read newspapers not only for the want-ads but for business news about a new store or industry opening in your area. Check out agencies who place temporary help, and opportunities in local or county government. Keep in touch with campus sources of employment listings such as Career Services, Co-op, and departmental bulletin boards.

Also, remember seasonal jobs in camps and leisure activities can provide experience for business, social science, art, music, science, health, and food service majors, too. If necessary, consider options for internships and volunteer work to supplement experience if you must work at a job that is not career-related. Be prepared to explore many possibilities.

More information on summer jobs and up-coming seminars is available now in the Career Services Office in Life Hall.

Students must take action

President Reagan has proposed drastic cutbacks in federal financial aid for the fiscal year 1983. He has proposed a 40 percent cut in Pell grants and a 28 percent cut in the College Work Study program which will put one million students out of work if these cuts receive congressional approval. Total elimination of the Direct Student Loan program, the State Student Loan Program and the Supplemental Grant Program are also part of Reagan's proposal as well as the elimination of graduate and professional school students from the Guaranteed Student Loan program.

The prevailing attitude among the supporters of these cuts is that it is not the responsibility of the federal government to provide for our education. We disagree. It is elitist to think that only those who can afford an education should have one. This is America, the land of opportunity--something of which the Reagan Administration seems to be losing sight.

It is our responsibility as students and as citizens to remind them of that fact. The United States Student Association(USSA) made the initial attempt by declaring this past Monday National Student Lobby Day. Members of Congress were greeted by thousands of students from across the nation who converged on Washington to voice their opposition to Reagan's proposed cutbacks.

That was only the beginning, however; now we must all do our part to see that their efforts were not in vain. We can no longer afford to sit by passively while the Administration threatens to rob us of our education. Reagan claims those who are 'truly needy' will not be affected; yet two out of four of the programs specially designed for students from disadvantaged backgrounds, are threatened with total elimination while the remaining two will be drastically reduced. Aid will be virtually ended for almost all families with incomes over $14,000, eliminating many of us who are in the middle income bracket.

If millions of students are unable to attend college and cannot find jobs, many will have no other alternative but to apply for food stamps, welfare, unemployment, etc., and add to the already high unemployment rate.

It is a bleak prospect, to say the least, but with a conscious effort on our parts, as students and as voters, we can affect our future.

We urge all of you, administration, faculty, and staff, as well as students, to take a few minutes to write or call your representative and/or senator. Tell them you are opposed to all financial aid cutbacks and ask them for a written reply. It can make the difference between your finishing your education and not. It's your future and your choice.

Do you think 'Lobby Day' will have any effect on the budget cuts in education?

Outtakes

Genesis establishes force

By Jamie McHugh

With the release of Abacab, Phil Collins and Genesis have firmly established themselves as a dominant force in contemporary music. Collins is on a hot streak with this high-selling release, following his successful solo album Face Value.

Collins is the dominant force on the album, although other Genesis members, Mike Rutherford (basses, guitars) and Tony Banks (keyboards), received writing credits on nine of the songs. With Phil Collins delivering lead vocals and drums, the unique sound of Genesis is now recognized and appreciated by a new group of fans as well as their former fans. (Genesis has been in existence since 1968.)

Abacab is led by what can be safely called Genesis' most successful single, "No Reply At All." This song is pure genius, using the brass section from the group Earth, Wind and Fire. The same brass section was used on Collins' solo album. A clap is also used in the song, which perfectly supplements the drums. And along with an improvised keyboard progression, the song is catapulted to where it can only be considered a classic.

The title track, "Abacab," is also being well-received by the public. It provides a pounding bass line and is filled-out with lead guitar and keyboards. Another strong track is "Keep It Dark," which is strangely reminiscent of the title track due to a repeating progression. In this song, Collins expresses his vision of a "world full of people with hearts full of joy, cities of light, with no fear of war."

Abacab, while not being the best of albums, and certainly supplying some erratic material, can still be called a great success, due mainly to some of its outstanding tracks and the continuation of a new-born popularity that it is bringing to the band.

sandworm. So much for the believable parts.

The whole schmeer centers on Leto's struggle to perpetuate some sort of philosophical evolution called the "Golden Path" (which Herbert wisely makes no attempt to explain—he could only have made things worse....) This is compounded by rebellion among his subject-ancestors and by Leto's falling in love. Yeah, I know. But after two weak sequels you're bound to run a little short of intelligent ideas in the third.

Why bother? If you're looking for good reading, give God Emperor of Dune a very, very wide berth. If you're one of those benighted people who just has to read the fourth book because you've read the first three, don't expect a damned thing except near-gibberish. And if you're one of those faddists who has to read all the in stuff (you know; the Tolkien/Vonnegut/Hesse/"Stranger in a Strange Land" bunch)...well...you deserve it!

major flaw is the absence of the Israelites and the God of Abraham. Another minor slight is his handling of the worship of female deities, which is mentioned but never seriously speculated on.

Nevertheless, the insights and details, interwoven history and fiction make a perfect balance in Creation; Vidal makes the past come alive. Though his final verdict on the creation of the world is a bit of an anticlimax, for such a vast work as the novel Creation, the means justify the ends.

BREASTS:

"My mother was really hateful about bras, and by the time my third sister had gotten to the point where she was ready to want one, my mother had worked the whole business into a comedy routine. "Why not use a Band-Aid instead?" she would say."

OBJECTIVITY:

"...Working as a journalist is exactly like being a wallflower at the orgy. I always seem to find myself at a perfectly wonderful event where everyone else is having a marvelous time, laughing merrily, eating, drinking, having sex in the back room, and I am standing on the side taking notes on it all."

ROD MC KUEN AND ERICH SEGAL:

"Their work is instantly accessible and comprehensible; and when the reader is moved by it, he assumes that it must be art. As a result, Segal and McKuen, each of whom started out rather modest about his achievement, have become convinced that they must be doing something not just right but important."

PEOPLE MAGAZINE:

"My problem with the magazine is not that I think it is harmful or dangerous or anything of the sort. It's almost not worth getting upset about. It's a potato chip. A snack. Empty calories. Which would be fine, really -- I like potato chips. But they make you feel lousy afterward too."

Indians take conference title

On Thursday, March 4 the MSC varsity basketball team will be boarding a plane heading for Roanoke, Virginia, the setting for the NCAA South Atlantic Regional Division III Tournament Friday and Saturday.

Last Saturday night MSC clinched the New Jersey State College Conference Championship with a sparkling performance against William Paterson College (WPC), winning the third time in less than two weeks that Coach Ollie Gelston's Indian team had turned back WPC. MSC sank 35 of 44 free throws, aided by Ed Riche's amazing 16 for 16 from the line. In comparison, the Pioneers shot 21 of 33.

The standing room only crowd roared as the Indians exploded with a 10-point run in the first half, led by Riche's two field goals, to open a 34-15 lead. Ty Durkac came on strong for MSC in the first half and hit for 12 of his 16 points before running into foul trouble.

Riche sank 16 points in the second half to knock out the WPC, thus winning the NJSCAC Crown for MSC for the second consecutive year in the NJSCAC.

Riche was the leading scorer with 24 points. Durkac had 16 points, and Brian O'Connell contributed 15 points to this win. Ted Bonner led the Pioneers with 16 points.

MSC

K. Barry 1-4-6, B. O'Connell 6-3-15, J. Ziemba 1-5-7, C. Coe 0-2-2, C. Mann 2-1-5, E. Riche 4-16-24, T. Durkac 6-4-16, B. Chamara 1-0-2.

WPC

Bonner 7-2-16, Borwell 3-4-10, Johnson 3-5-11, Morrell 2-1-5, Pemuko 2-0-4, Thomas 2-0-4, Williams 2-2-6, Williamson 3-7-13.

SPORTS INFO:

The MSC vs. Virginia basketball game will be broadcast live on WMSC radio 90.3 fm. Game time is Friday 8:30 p.m.

Ssssmooth, co-captain Ed Riche (20) takes it to Vic Thomas of WPC. Riche pumped in 24 points.

Indians prepare for a good season

By Phil Tintle

With the weather we've been having lately, what's the "last" thing on most of our minds? You guessed it--baseball. But the weather hasn't stopped the MSC Indians, they've been practicing for several weeks now.

However, the men's baseball team has their work cut out for them this year. Many key players were lost from last year's 1981 squad. All-Conference third baseman and co-captain Bob Fortunato who batted .364 last year is gone. Vin Tiberi, the other co-captain batted .273 with 6 HR's while guiding the pitchers from his catcher's position. Another All-Conference selection was Bill Schonig who batted .368 while playing second base. First baseman Gene McDonald will also be missed--especially his .354 batting average. The Indian squad lost three pitchers: Glen Dwyer, Bob Buccino, and Roger Lope. How well these players are replaced will have a lot to do with how well the Indians finish this season.

On the brighter side, the Indians have many solid ballplayers returning. The entire outfield is back from last year, including: junior rightfielder Steve Lipinski, who batted .305 with 5 HR's; senior leftfielder Dave McLaughlin, who batted .366; and senior centerfielder Mark Baker, who batted .212 and tied co-captain Vin Tiberi with 6 HR's. Another key player to this year's team is senior Tony Sabato. Last year Tony batted .264 and led the team with 31 RBI's. This year Tony will move from shortstop to third base. Newcomers to the varsity squad are freshman Mike Nicosia, junior Rick Hyer, and senior Steve Nerrone, who will play some infield, outfield, and designated hitter (DH).

A big part of this year's team is the returning pitching staff. Junior Jay Aldrich was injured most of last year, but the Indians are expecting big things from him this year. Aldrich only pitched 18 innings last year and before his injury was 1-0. The ace returning to the mound from last year is senior Glen Rowe. Rowe was 3-1 last year, and MSC Head Coach Fred Hill is looking for an outstanding year from him. The only other starting pitcher who is returning is Jim Coriddi, who was 1-0 during the 1981 season.

Last year's ace in the bullpen is returning this year. At the end of the 1981 season, Brian Cloney finished with a 2-3 record with 8 saves. There have been several additions to this year's pitching staff. Sophomores Glen Bachison and Mike Butler are up from the junior varsity squad. Freshmen Dave DeMarco and Dan Olsson will be looking for some playing time, as will be transfer student Glen Wesco.

Coach Hill sees one problem with this year's team--the infield has to be rebuilt. It looks as though Tony Sabato will be playing third base this year, but other than that, there are many question marks concerning the other positions. The candidates for starting positions are: Ray Morelli who batted .263 with 4 HR's last year, juniors Glen DiLeo and Jim Hill, John Seymour and Dan Guida who are up from JV, and freshmen Bob Yeager, Jodi Tobia, and Ron Koes.

The catcher's position will be is also up in the air. The candidates to fill the vacant spot of former co-captain Vin Tiberi are: Don Rossi, who was the backup catcher last year, Butch Sutterley, Dave Wernicki, and Andy Cuomo.

Coach Hill remarked that there are several players that are going to play major roles in the success of this year's team. Pitchers Jay Aldrich and Glen Rowe are going to have to keep the opposing batters idle, while at the same time, the Indians will be looking for third baseman Tony Sabato and all the outfielders to hit the long ball.

Last year the season went right down to the final two games to the year. First place was decided on the final two games against William Paterson College(WPC). The first game was at WPC and Montclair lost 3-2 in 10 innings. The very next day the Indians were defeated at home 10-9, thus removing any chance for a playoff bid. The 1981 team finished with an 18-10 record.

Coach Hill said, "The whole conference is very strong and well balanced this year." He commented that Kean College played their best ball in several years last year and were looking to repeat in 1982. Ramapo, Glassboro, and Trenton State will also be producing strong teams this year. Coach Hill sees only one team having a slight edge--WPC, because they have many players returning from last year.

The Indians open up their season in Florida on March 15 against Miami Dade New World. After spending ten days in Florida, the team will return home to host NJIT on March 27. MSC will have strong competition this year, so let's all get out there opening day and support our team!

Brian O'Connell (10) instructs a lay-up lesson to a host of interested WPC players as Ed Riche trails. See p. 15

Bob Chamara(23) looks for two.
